DEFENDS RIGHT OF FARMER TO LIMIT OUTPUT

State Grange Lecturer
Speaks At Banquet
At Bayard

PRODUCTION AND PRICES COMPARED

Refutes Crop Scarcity
Theory By Quoting
U. S. Figures

Members of granges throughout Columbiana county attended the banquet at Bayard grange hall Friday night and heard Joseph W. Fichter of Oxford, state grange lecturer, speak on "Some Phases of Rural Life".

Fichter gave an interesting talk, not on any one particular farm subject, but on rural conditions in general.

"If industry can limit production, so can agriculture," he said.

"While the supply of farm products has been increasing," he pointed out, the demand has been decreasing, this creating a surplus that keeps the prices down. Our foreign markets almost disappeared after the World War; automobiles, trucks and tractors have so reduced the demand for horses and mules that 31,000,000 acres of land previously used to grow feed for them have gone out of cultivation."

Can't Accuse Farmers

"There are those who wish to criticize the farmer for wishing to limit production when the supply exceeds the demand," he continued. "They say he is practicing an economy scarcity. The farmers, however, can hardly be accused of the practice of scarcity in view of the fact that last year their production of the five leading crops was six per cent greater than ever before in the history of the United States, and if ordinary weather continued, they can easily be swamped by a wasteful over-production this year."

The grange leader pointed out that although farm production is up, non-farm production is less than a year ago. "We cannot expect the factory to continue to operate at a loss when the demand for a product falls off. Neither can we expect the farmer to operate at a loss. It would seem that agriculture must limit production as long as industry continues to do so."

"We shall have the ideal situation when everyone is producing more and more for less and less, but the farmer alone cannot be expected to do this. He has been following this practice for years," Fichter said.

Quoted Figures

The speaker quoted figures to show that from March, 1937, to March of this year, there was a 25 per cent drop in farm prices while the price drop on 640 different manufactured items was less than four per cent. The parity between farm prices and industrial prices is not being maintained, in the speaker's opinion.

On the other hand, he explained, one must not overlook the inherent advantages of farm life, such as independence, good food, long life and a satisfying family life.

"The farmer can think and speak as he pleases on political, economic and social questions without fear of losing his job. Farm life also offers a spiritual security that is not found elsewhere—a kind of security which all of us need so much today," he continued.

"Good business for the entire country depends upon the prosperity of the farmer. A report on the

LEADERS NAMED BY ROUMANIANS

Junior Union Goes On Record Opposing War
And Fascism

The Junior Union of the Union and League of Rumanian Societies of America, at their recent convention in Chicago, took a definite stand against war and Fascism. Earl Orashan of Salem, national publicity director, revealed today. Attending from this district, in addition to Orashan, were Michael Cretu of Salem and John Lica of Alliance.

At the convention, Lica, Louis Bozin of Detroit and Sylvia Dates of Youngstown were named as delegates to the World Youth Congress, which invited the Junior Union to participate in the congress to be held at Vassar college in August.

Plans also were made for educational, cultural and athletic activities of the many junior Rumanian organizations. "What Democracy Means to Me" is the subject for an essay contest in the near future.

John Lica of Alliance was re-elected president of the Junior Union at the convention and Earl Orashan of Salem was named director of national publicity. Michael Cretu of Salem was elected to the executive committee.

Other officers are: Ohio vice president, Gravila Mihuta of Lorain; Michigan vice president, Charles Romcea of Dearborn, Mich.; Indiana and Illinois vice president, George Voinea; Pennsylvania vice president, Charles Gorun; secretary-treasurer, George Candea of Cleveland; auditors, Sylvia Dates, of Youngstown and George Codrea, Akron; executive committee, John Musat of Canton, Thomas Costino, East Chicago, Ind.; Anne Cotarla, Campbell; John Bozin, Detroit; athletic committee, John Candea, Cleveland, George Stan, Martins Ferry, John Toth Jr., Akron.

Members of the young Rumanian groups voted to improve themselves so that they may improve the communities in which they live, and win recognition as a group of outstanding citizens of accomplishments and achievements.

Vanderberg Urges Outright Publicity

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., July 9.—Sen. Arthur H. Vanderberg (R-Mich.) proposed today that government officials be required to make public the amount of income they derive from market transactions, personal holdings or private services.

The senator, in a statement from his home here, said need exists for regulation to protect the public from "outright exploitation."

"We constantly hear ugly rumors about 'leaks' that have been capitalized for public profit," Vanderberg said.

"None of them ever comes to proof. Most of them probably are untrue. The best protection which honest officials can have, in such circumstances, is a publicity requirement, with a criminal penalty attached, which makes the whole record public."

May "Seal" Streets

POTTERS' UNION SEEKS HEAVIER IMPORT DUTIES

Brotherhood ends Annual Convention In Atlantic City

ASSESSMENT MADE ON "WRONG BASIS"

Prepare at Secret Sessions
For Biennial
Wage Parley

(By Associated Press)

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 9.—The National Brotherhood of Operative Potters ended its annual convention yesterday with a resolution calling upon the federal government to place heavier import duties on foreign-made pottery and chinaware.

The union's resolution charged that "contrary to law" duties on Japanese pottery products were being assessed on the basis of alleged values in Japan rather than values in the United States.

About 30 per cent of the chinaware sold in the United States comes from Japan, the potters said, and if the federal treasury "properly enforced the law determining the value of goods" the Japanese imports would be greatly reduced because duties would be enhanced 12-fold.

Difference in Wages

The union said pottery workers in the United States get an average of $6 a day, while those in Japan get about 40 cents a day.

Another resolution asked the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to stop lending money to corporations "which refuse to bargain collectively with their employees" and recall a loan it allegedly made recently to the American Encaustic company of Zanesville, Ohio.

The union resolved to send representatives to demand formally of RFC officials that they cancel the loan, and if that mission fails, to send another delegation to President Roosevelt asking him to prevent use of federal funds "to undermine and destroy the wage and working conditions which now prevail in our industry after years of collective bargaining."

The union announced it would soon launch a unionization campaign in California's new pottery industry. Pottery plants have been popping up like mushrooms in California the past three years with the result that state now holds second place in the industry, and is destined soon to become the great pottery state, the union said. California's plants are now only partially unionized.

Plan Wage Parley

For the past two weeks the potters have been meeting in secret here. Preparing for negotiations with manufacturers here next month on a wage and hour contract to take the place of the present contract, which expires Oct. 1, union leaders said no general wage increase would be asked this year, but small increases would be asked for piece-work on a few specific articles.

The union resolved to join with the manufacturers in a pottery-making exhibit at the New York World's fair next year, and authorized the executive committee to use union funds for the purpose. They also resolved to join with the American Federation of Labor in seeking imposition of a tax to provide subsistence for workers thrown out of work by labor-saving machinery.

2 ARE INJURED IN 2 ACCIDENTS

Baltimore Youth's Arm is Broken
In Mishap Near N. Benton
As Auto Rolls Over

Two traffic accidents in the district late Friday afternoon left two persons injured, according to state highway patrolmen.

Theodore Knepper, of Baltimore, Md., suffered a broken left arm and was cut and bruised when the car in which he was riding with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis C. Knepper, and a sister, Thelma, was crowded off the road on Route 14, just beyond North Benton.

The accident occurred at 3:20 as Louis Knepper was driving north. Theodore, the only one hurt, was taken to a Ravensona hospital.

Thomas W. Crawford, 61, of R. D. 2, Diamond, suffered cuts to his face and head in a collision between his car and one driven by W. F. Wetzel, 39, of R. D. 5, Salem.

The crash occurred at the intersection of Route 45 and a county road, two miles north of Ellsworth at 6:15 p. m.

Women Eager for Second Half Of Dangerous Colorado Trip

Turbulent Rapids of Grand Canyon Hold No Fear
For Dr. Elzada Glover and Assistant

(By Associated Press)

LEE'S FERRY, Ariz., July 9.—Inoculated against fear by 18 dramatic days of plunging down one of the west's mightiest rivers, two women, one of them nearing middle age, awaited eagerly today start of the second half of the Colorado river descent to quiet waters behind Boulder Dam, Nev.

Informed that the six-member scientific expedition, still has the turbulent rapids of the Grand Canyon to navigate, 40-year-old Dr. Elzada Glover, plump University of Michigan Botanist, said:

"We know what to expect. Rapids frightened me when the trip started but now I know how to help handle the boat."

Her 25-year-old assistant, Lois Jotter, was anxious to get underway.

"I'm not worried," she said. "The trip's been exciting and swell. It looks as though Dr. Glover and I will be the first women to conquer the Colorado."

The expedition, four men and two women, traveling in three light boats, arrived here yesterday—four days overdue from Green River, Utah, where they embarked June 20.

The women shared equally in the expedition's tasks and dangers.

Two experiences, Dr. Glover said, steered the nerves of Miss Jotter and herself.

While negotiating rapids, a Perry grange enjoyed the following program, in charge of Raymond Pawcett, lecturer, at its meeting Wednesday night: Poem, Mrs. Samuel Hilliard; songs, Miss Vilda Bricker, Henrietta and Eleanor Hilliard and Mrs. George Hawkins.

Reading and remarks, Guy Whinnery; special feature, Eleanor Hilliard; roll call, "Where I Would Like to Visit in America and Why." Goshen grange will present the program at the next meeting on July 20.

A new social committee was appointed as follows: Mrs. Homer Enright, Mrs. Samuel Hilliard, Mrs. Walter Hilliard, Jr., Miss Wilda Bricker, Mrs. Joseph Driscoll and Mrs. Guy Whinnery. The group will serve three months.

SPEEDS TOWARD OKLAHOMA TODAY

And There, Senator Elmer Thomas Is Expected to Get Presidential Nod Over Gov. Marland and Rev. Gomer Smith

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, July 9.—President Roosevelt's first addresses on his western tour dispelled for capital politicians any doubts as to the vigor of the campaign he intends to wage for a clear-cut political division of "liberals" and "conservatives" as he defines them.

In Ohio and Kentucky, he made sharply clear that he would like to have Senators Bulkley and Barkley returned to congress because of their support of administration measures.

And the lengthy laudation he accorded Barkley showed the extent to which Mr. Roosevelt was willing to stake his personal prestige on the success of candidates high in his favor.

There seemed no doubt that elsewhere across the country he would put in a word for administration stalwarts up for reelection, and his fighting mood strengthened the probability that he would speak out against some of the senators who have opposed him.

The ultimate success of Mr. Roosevelt's campaign, as he has outlined it so far, would mean a "liberal" label for the Democratic party and a "conservative" one for the Republican party—using the Roosevelt definitions—in 1940.

Already he has encountered his first difficulties—with those whom he would call "conservatives" within his own party. They include senators who have blocked some of his favored measures and some Democratic leaders whose first consideration is party solidarity.

The chief executive thus far has indicated no place for them in his ideal "Liberal" party, and from them he may expect opposition to the last.

And another obstacle to such an alignment is being erected by Republican leaders.

Mr. Roosevelt, in his radio address of June 25, described "liberals" as the new conditions throughout the world call for new remedies.

He defined "conservatives" as those who do not "recognize the need for government itself to step in and take action to meet these new problems."

Confesses Slaying Stepfather; Claims He Waited 15 Years

DAYTON, July 9.—Harold Earl Kuntz, a 30-year-old meat cutter, calmly confessed today to killing his stepfather after "waiting 15 years," Police Captain W. G. Coover said.

The stepfather, George Elmer Smith, 61, WPA worker, was shot three times and killed on the porch of his home late last night.

"I waited 15 years for this," Coover quoted Kuntz. "He murdered my mother and shot out my right eye. I finally got him."

"He used a .38 on her and I used a .32 on him."

Police records showed that Smith fatally shot his first wife, Mrs. Lily Kuntz Smith, 43, in a quarrel and Kuntz lost an eye and was wounded in the arm. Smith pleaded guilty Jan. 26, 1922 and was pardoned from a life term in 1928.

The stepson was held under open charges pending formal arraignment today.

Top Scores Hung Up By Salem Marksmen

Salem shooters are "going places" in the annual Conneaut, (Pa.) "Indian" shoot, now under way, according to word from George Baillie, who, with Dr. G. A. Roosevelt and Nathan Hunt, are entered from this district.

Dr. Roosevelt won his class event with a 95 and his handicap shoot with a 94. Baillie was third in his class event with a 91.

Today, Dr. Roosevelt hung up 100 straight at 16 yards and Nathan Hunt was right on his heels with 99.

SHADOW OF A DOUBT

Ohioans who whooped when the Ohio Bell rate case was settled last May on the basis of a $7,225,000 refund aren't sure they're grateful to the men who have tied one more knot in the 14 year old litigation.

Their contention, which the state supreme court has decided to consider, is that more than twice the amount decided on should be refunded. The general public's contention, if it were to make one, or could make one, likely would be that any kind of a settlement after so many years of argument is like getting pennies from heaven.

It has been made plain that in a case so complicated there is no possibility of reaching a clean-cut decision. There are some who are interested in sharpening a personal ax on the utilities grindstone. The public at large may be excused for a shadow of a doubt in this instance.

ASKING THE IMPOSSIBLE

The further the issue of Dr. Arthur E. Morgan against the other two members of TVA and President Roosevelt, who removed him as chairman, gets from the first skyrocket of excitement, the plainer it is that the only vital point involved is this: Should the congress of the United States give to the chief executive power to appoint a commission whose members will have to be legislators, executives and judges? That is a momentous delegation of congressional authority.

Once in a lifetime such an executive commission might be created and operate without friction and with such restraint that it would arouse no misgivings and prove highly effective as an agency of government, even in a representative democracy where legislators are not supposed to delegate power given to them by the people.

All the other times, the commission would pan out about as well as TVA has panned out.

BLOODY HARLAN

Three murders apparently connected with Harlan county's labor situation during the first eight weeks of a test case on an indictment charging coal companies and operators with conspiracy against the labor relations act reveal the dangerous temper prevailing in Kentucky's sore spot.

Harlan county's condition has been widely publicized, usually with the intent of giving one side or the other a black eye. The conspiracy indictment, as critics of the companies and operators see it, is supposed to have a remedial effect. On the other hand, it is questionable whether or not a remedial effect can be hoped for under the circumstances.

The government, the operators, the union organizers and the workmen who are affected are dealing in Harlan county with a condition, not a theory—a condition which in the past has made violence seem the only recourse for dealing with violence. Three murders in two months—one of a former deputy named in the indictment, the other two of government witnesses indicate that before Harlan county can be purged of its bloody reputation, its residents will need the benefit of a few generations of civilized living.

ASHLEY WILKES WAS RIGHT

This is not a plug for Margaret Mitchell's "Gone With The Wind," which doesn't need plugging, but a pat on the back for Ashley Wilkes, Miss Mitchell's spokesman for a school of southern gentlemen who realized that the industrial revolution was doing to them—but couldn't help it.

Ashley Wilkes observed sadly that a pleasant way of life was being sacrificed to the bustling, money mad north. He watched the civilization of his beloved south crumbling under his feet. He fought to save it, though he was smart enough to know it was past saving by that time. Ashley was right.

If he were to rise today from his ivy covered grave in the deep south one of the first things to meet his eye would be an official conference convened to study the south, which the president of the United States sternly calls the "nation's No. 1 economic problem."

If Ashley were smart, he would take one last look around for Scarlett O'Hara and return to oblivion letting the north try to solve what never should have been permitted to become a problem in the first place, as far as he's concerned. The north, as he would see it, is squirming with discomfort simply because its chickens have come home to roost—or as President Roosevelt puts it, "We have an economic unbalance in the nation as a whole due to the condition of the south."

Ashley—good old Ashley—would wonder dimly whose fault that was.

THE STARS SAY:

For Sunday, July 10

Sunday's horoscope holds token of rather conflicting conditions, with much working at cross-purposes, but generally lively and happy affairs. There may be disagreeable angles concerning the emotions or intimate relationships. Yet, there may be a stabilizing of the fortunes with the prospect of sudden changes in pursuit of progress and pleasure.

If This Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a rather conflicting year, with the prospect of strife, breaking up of old sentimental affairs, travel, and much activity and satisfaction in the pursuit of pleasure. Surprising adventures may happen in this direction, and there may also be an event that will result in putting the fortunes on a firm foundation.

A child born on this day may have rather contradictory traits of character, with much impetuosity, self-indulgence and contrariness. But, at the same time, it may be rather adventurous, romantic, likeable and much sought.

For Monday, July 11

Monday's astrological forecast is for a particularly lively and interesting day, with much stirring about on short trips, and possibly with sentimental and romantic affairs claiming the attention. Nevertheless, there may be some contracts to be signed, and these are promising, provided there be not an excessive outlay of funds. This also applies to pleasurable indulgences.

If This Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a progressive and pleasant year, with much activity, short trips, new business and contracts, all of which should prove profitable if given proper consideration and not carried off too expansively in ideas or in extravagance.

A child born on this day may be disposed to be a "high flyer" both in business and pleasure, unless given an early outlook against overexpansiveness and extravagance. It may live beyond its means, but should maintain a respected and responsible status.

BOLIVIA AND PARAGUAY SEE WAR'S END

(By Associated Press)

An accord sealed with a kiss today buoyed the world's hopes that Bolivia and Paraguay would war no more for the Gran Chaco's "Green Hell" but in three other troubled areas of the world—Palestine, the Orient and Spain—the shadows of war and revolt lengthened.

Joyous handshakes and backslapping followed the initialing in Buenos Aires of a preliminary agreement to end the century-old dispute between Bolivia and Paraguay.

The agreement to determine the boundary between the long-embittered neighbors through arbitration by presidents of six American nations or their representatives now must be submitted for final approval of Bolivia and Paraguay.

Mediators, who have been struggling to find a peace formula in the three years of truce that ended the bloodshed from 1932 to 1935, hope a final treaty can be signed in five or six days.

The slaying of two Christians and a Muslim in an Arab village in the holy Nazareth district of Palestine raised the death toll in three days of racial killings to 61. At least 150 were wounded.

The bitter strife between Jews and Arabs in the Holy Land persisted despite heavy reinforcements of British forces striving to quell the disorders.

Arab strikes spread and strict curfew laws were enforced in the largest cities. Steel-helmeted policemen sat with loaded rifles atop every bus operating in Jerusalem.

A bomb, which Arabs accuse Jews of hurling, killed four Arabs and wounded 36 there yesterday.

In the Far East, Japanese, rebuffed once by foreign powers whom they urged to clear all vessels and citizens from the Chinese war zone, sent a new note to the United States and other nations urging evacuation.

They specified the area along the Yangtze river between Nanking and Wanchung, halfway to Hankow, through which 20,000 fresh Japanese troops are being rushed to reinforce the drive on China's temporary capital.

In a week's fighting, the Japanese have passed China's submerged barrier at Matowehien and have reached Hukow, 130 miles downriver from Hankow, in fighting along the Yangtze's flooded swamp-land banks. A heavy concentration of Japanese war vessels and transports is reported following the troops up the river.

CLEVELAND—Theodore Regan's employer gave him a day off so he could go to the courthouse. Regan, who pleaded guilty in traffic court to a speeding charge, told Judge Julius Kovachy that he could not go to the courthouse for three days as he would lose his job. The judge told him to ask his employer for one day off. The request was granted.

FREEDOM FROM FINANCIAL WORRIES

Financial freedom is the natural heritage of an independent people.

There is no more appropriate time to call attention to the necessity for freedom from financial worries than at this time of the year.

Independence Day marked the anniversary of the birth of a free people.

The opening of a Savings Account with THE HOME is the first step in eliminating the fear of poverty.

THE HOME today pays tribute to a free people, the majority of whom are seeking financial freedom thru the practice of systematic thrift.

How Books Are Used To Aid The Suffering

BIBLIOTHERAPY IS the name given to that form of treatment which consists of reading books. Sometimes the book may be a treatise on the disease the patient has, and sometimes it may be only fiction.

I know one doctor who never starts his day's rounds without piling up 10 or 15 books to give his patients. Most of them in his practice have tuberculosis and they lead a monotonous life, resting in bed. Anyone enjoys a book more when it has been recommended by someone whom they like and admire, so the doctor's literary prescriptions pass away many a long hour.

There are a large number of books designed for instructing patients in certain diseases—three especially—diabetes, tuberculosis and arthritis. Manuals on diabetes for instructing patients are Joslin's, John's, Wilder's, McHenry's. They give instructions in calculating diets, examining urine, administering insulin, etc. Good tuberculosis manuals are by Hawes and Webb. "Conquering Arthritis" by Margolis is a valuable book of instruction in that field.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Help the Nervous
Another large group of books deal with nervous and psychologic troubles—"Outwitting Our Nerves" by Jackson and Salisbury, "The Human Mind," by Meininger, "Discovering Ourselves" by Strecker and Appel, and Adamson's "So You're Going to a Psychiatrist." One patient under treatment found some ideas in Jackson and Salisbury's "Outwitting Our Nerves" which gave her more help for her insomnia than her doctor had.

But the majority of cures along this line comes from reading fiction, or general literature. A neurotic personality finds escape in the adventure novels of Zane Grey or the historical romance of Conan Doyle. "The White Company" is calculated to take the sick man's mind off himself for two to three hours.

Patients of nervous habit tend to identify themselves with some character in a book and they get satisfaction in this way, because they are in imagination at least successful and happy, which helps their inferiority complex. "Gone With the Wind" was read by two patients, one of whom identified herself with Scarlett to her great satisfaction. Another identified her husband, with whom she was on bad terms, with Rhett Butler, the cruel and ruthless individualist.

CHAPTER XXVII

With almost unendurable relief they grabbed the rope and held it. The gun was fired again and another life line hissed through the air above them. Gregory could just reach it as it fell so he left the first for Wells. With their last remnants of strength, fortified by the frantic will to live, they hauled the black end of the ropes in and coiled them round their bodies, beneath their armpits, by thrusting them through the unresisting sand which had welled up to their shoulders.

"Ready?" came a hail from the group by the rocket gun.

"Heave away," shouted Gregory and the strain was taken up on the ropes.

There followed the most ghastly struggle between the rescuers and those evil sands which were so loath to give up their prey. The imprisoned men were torn in half. They moaned in agony as the life lines gripped them like wire springs about their chests; cutting into their bodies and forcing the breath out of their lungs. They were lying on an angle now, with their heads toward their rescuers, their shoulders only supported by the pulling of their torsos and feet still buried deep in the shifting sands.

For what seemed an eternity they were stretched as though upon a rack, striving with the tired muscles of their legs for even a fraction of movement which would free them, but it seemed that they were too firmly embedded ever to be drawn out.

It was Gregory who, through a mist of pain, realized that now their heads and shoulders were supported there was no longer any danger of their arms becoming permanently imprisoned if they chose to use them, so he plucked his hands down and began to heave out handfuls of the soft sand-liquid sluff from in front of his chest.

The struggle lasted for nearly an hour. Gregory was free ten minutes before Wells. As the life line drew him over a steep bank of sand he slithered into the water. Then he was hauled aboard a big flat-bottomed speed boat, where he collapsed on the bottom boards, unconscious.

When he came to, Wells was beside him and their rescuers were applying restoratives. The ordeal had been such an appalling one that they were unable to speak and could not move a muscle without acute pain. Both of them slipped into unconsciousness again as the speed boat's engine began to stutter. With a puff of blue smoke in its wake it roared out into the water.

They were vaguely conscious of being carried up the steps of a pier and bundled into a car, then through the side door of a hotel and up the back stairs into a room, where friendly hands relieved them of their sodden, lead-laden garments. Then came the glorious ease of relaxing their exhausted bodies in clear warm water.

It was late afternoon when they were aroused from the deep black slumber which follows intense fatigue to find themselves in single beds in the same room, with Sir Pellinore Gwaine-Cust and Superintendent Marrowiat standing beside them.

"How're you feeling now, my boy?" Sir Pellinore inquired, his hand on Gregory's shoulder.

Gregory gazed round the strange room with a vacant stare. "Where—where are we?" he asked after a moment.

"Granville Hotel, Ramsgate. By jove you've had a gruelling—but you're safe out of it all now."

"For God's sake go away and let me sleep again," Gregory muttered.

"Sorry," said Superintendent Marrowiat abruptly. "We let you lie as long as we dare, but I must have information you've got to give up. Come along, Wells, let's have your story."

Gerry Wells moaned as he hoisted himself up against his pillows. His body seemed to be one large burning ache, and he saw that under a pair of strange pajamas his back and chest were bandaged, although he could still feel the vise-like grip of the life line round his body.

Slowly and painfully he told his superior of the evil chance that had brought about their capture the night before and of the manner in which they had very nearly lost their lives.

Gregory had been gathering his strength. He looked up at Sir Pellinore. "What brought you to the scene so opportunely? If you hadn't turned up when you did we'd both be fiddling in heaven now—or stoking up the coals."

Sir Pellinore grinned. "No thanks to me, my boy. Sabine telephoned to me from Quex Park a little after midnight. She said they had caught you both and that Gavin Fortescue had just left for Ash Levell. She seemed to know about the quicksand too and gave a pretty good forecast of what they were likely to do with you."

Gregory frowned. "A little after midnight! Why the hell weren't you there before then? In a fast car you could have made that place in a couple of hours, whereas you took darned near six and very nearly turned up too late into the bargain."

"The fat superintendent coughed. 'I'm afraid that's my fault, Mr. Sallust. Sir Pellinore got on to the Yard at once and they reached me at my home. We were down here by a little before three, so we could have raided the cottage, if we'd wanted to. But this thing's such a terrible threat to the well-being of the country that we've just got to get all the threads in our hands before we act. If we'd rushed that place we would have got you out all right, but we'd have been too late to pinch Lord Gavin, and apart from that, he haven't yet succeeded in getting on to the London organization.'"

A sardonic smile twitched at Gregory's thin lips. "So you took a chance..."

The Superintendent laughed. "Not a very big one. We knew they wouldn't shoot you unless you did something stupid. Our scheme went like clockwork. They think you're dead and that they're safe as houses, so no alarm will have been given. You're out of it and we'll be able to pull them in just when we wish."

Gregory nodded. "Good stuff work I suppose, but devilish hard on the nerves, and you've made a pretty fine mess of my poor old carcass."

"Maybe, but did you get anything? That's what I had to wake you up to know."

"I did," said Wells with new enthusiasm. "I managed to spot the address on that case before they grabbed me. Mithloom & Allison, 43, Barter Street, E. 1."

"Good boy," the Superintendent chuckled into his double chin. "I'm leaving for London now and we'll take a look over the place tonight. The doctor tells me there's no damage done to either of you, although you'll be a bit sore in the ribs for the next few days. You'd both better take it easy, I'm thinking, while I get on with the job."

Gerry Wells sat up, suppressed a groan, and said: "Half a minute, sir. This is my pigeon. Surely you're not going to do me out of it just because I was fool enough to get caught last night. If I caught the last train up then I could be in on the raid—couldn't I, sir?"

The Superintendent nodded. "Certainly, if you're fit."

At eight o'clock the manager of the hotel called them and superintended the preparations for an excellent meal to be served in their room.

Wells and Gregory both felt terribly stiff, but apart from that, and the soreness under their arms, perfectly well again after their thirteen hours in bed. Dressing proved a painful operation, but once it was accomplished and they had been heartened by a good dinner, washed down with a fine bottle of Burgundy, they felt as keen as ever. A car was waiting for them when they came downstairs and they caught the 9:08 to London arriving at Charing Cross two minutes before midnight.

At the Yard all preparations for the secret raid had been completed. Mithloom & Allison had proved to be a firm of wholesale tobacco merchants. Their warehouses, so the Superintendent had ascertained, was fitted with electric burglar alarms, but they did not employ a night watchman. Arrangements had been made for the electric current to be cut off at the main between the hours of one and three.

The Superintendent, Gregory, Gerry Wells, a lock expert from the special department, and another detective, squeezed themselves into one of the bigger Flying Squad cars at a quarter to one, and the driver turned its nose eastward.

They parked the car at the end of Barter Street, leaving the driver with it. A city policeman touched his helmet to the Superintendent, having been warned of their visit, and remained on the corner to keep watch, while the five others made their way along the narrow pavement to number 43.

Grimy window panes stared at them blankly from the street level; above, the big hook and ball of a crane for hauling merchandise to the upper floors dangled over their heads. The Superintendent looked at his watch.

"Five past one. Go ahead, Jim," he said.

The lock expert produced a bag of tools and selecting one, started work on the door. "Lock's easy enough," he murmured. "Old fashioned piece." With a twist of his wrist it clicked back into its socket. Pushing the door open the five men entered the building. The Superintendent switched on his torch. It showed a dusty hallway with a flight of stone steps leading to the upper floors and, on their left, two glass-paneled swing doors giving on to the offices. Thrusting them wide, the fat Superintendent led the way in.

The beam of his torch, as he flashed it round, showed shelves with rows of faded letter files upon them; an old fashioned clerk's desk, with high stools in front of it, and a rusty brass rail which carried a number of leather-bound ledgers. Another door with a frosted glass panel, on which was painted "Private" in black letters, showed to the right. The lock expert set to work again and soon had it open.

The inner office was little better than the one they had just glanced over. A roll-top desk occupied a corner near the window; a meager square of turkey carpet failed to conceal all but a small portion of the worn oilcloth with which the floor was covered. An open bookcase contained piles of old trade journals, samples, and miscellaneous paraphernalia.

"We'll come back here later," said the superintendent. "First I want to see the contents of the warehouse."

They trooped out behind him and up the stone stairs to the first floor. It was an empty barn-like room, containing only several stacks of cases. The Superintendent pointed: Wells and the extra detective pulled one out from the middle of the stack and, by means of a jimmy which the lock man produced from his bag of tools, opened it up. It was a longish coffin-shaped case and contained tins of leaf tobacco.

They hammered back the nails carefully, so that it should not appear to have been opened, and replaced it in the center of the stack. The contents of four other cases were investigated from different portions of the room and the Superintendent noted down particulars of the goods they contained in his pocket book. Then they visited the upper floor and the same process was gone through with other consignments of merchandise which they found there. The top floor and the one below it were empty.

Here's World's Most Expensive Sky Garden!

In the shadow of skyscrapers

Precarious perch!

Corner of the sky garden

One of the most unusual jobs in the United States is that held by John Buckley of New York whose duty it is to plant and care for the sky garden atop famed Rockefeller Center. Eleven stories above the street is this terraced roof where vegetables and flowers grow in an attractive atmosphere of shrubs and trees. This miniature garden, probably the most expensive piece of aerial agriculture in the world, has a vegetable plot 250 feet square and winding walks landscaped in a manner which would do credit to any country home. Now accustomed to his unusual job, Buckley goes about his duties with a casual manner which seems to foretell the distant day when sky gardens will be common.

SILKWORMS TRY RELIEF WORKER

Cleveland WPA Employee Follows Odd Type of Profession

CLEVELAND, July 9.—Probably the only silkworm grower in this part of the country is Patsy Semary, a WPA worker.

Semary worked in steel mills formerly. When the mills closed he took to growing silkworms. The first were hatched in the spring. Early in the spring, he asked a friend, who was traveling abroad, to bring him some silkworm eggs from Italy.

As a child he learned silkworm culture from his mother. His friend brought him a large number of eggs—more than Semary had expected.

He selected a few dozen to hatch on shelves in one of the rooms in his home. The rest of the eggs he placed in a writing desk.

Surprisingly, the eggs on the shelves and those in the desk hatched at the same time. He was the owner of thousands, instead of a few dozen, silkworms.

Knowing that silkworms have a highly specialized diet, eating only mulberry leaves, Semary is kept extremely busy providing them with leaves.

He picked bare the solitary mulberry tree on his street. He now is working a tree on a nearby street.

He has tried unsuccessfully to obtain permission to pick other trees in Cleveland.

In the meantime, the silkworms have started spinning their cocoons. Some have climbed the walls and have spun cocoons on the ceiling.

Semary is glad that the silkworms stop eating when they begin to spin.

Those not yet spinning, however, still keep him so busy gathering mulberry leaves that he has had no time to find out where he can sell them.

Skin Grafting Art Traced To Italy 5 Centuries Ago

(By Associated Press) NEW YORK, July 9.—Miss Ruth Gleason of Boulder, Colo., who can walk today because skin from her thigh was grafted to the sole of her right foot, can be grateful to an Italian who was the world's foremost surgeon five centuries ago.

This was Branca of Sicily, to whose operating table went dukes and duchesses from all the European world 50 years before Columbus arrived in America.

In its essentials, Branca's operation of the 15th century was the same as that undergone by Miss Gleason in the last month. In both cases, new, living skin from the patient's own body was grafted to the injured member.

Specialty Was Noses

But Branca's specialty was noses. In those days, the loss of a nose was no unusual thing, broadsword being what they were and de-nosing being the standard punishment for infidelity.

Branca's technique, as perfected by his son, Antonio, was to make a pattern in leather of the skin around the patient's nose, trace around the pattern on the upper arm and there cut away an identical piece of skin, leaving about two inches still attached to the arm.

Then the loose skin flap was sewed in place on the nose stump and the forearm was bound to the patient's head. After a couple of weeks in that position, the remainder of the arm skin was cut away and the lower part of a nose, with waxed quills for nostrils, was fashioned.

Other Secret Lost

The operation was not always a great success. While Antonio Branca was still going strong, in 1497, Alexander Benedictus wrote: "But this artificial nose endures with difficulty a hard winter and when first put on it is very necessary to guard against having it pulled off."

The tlemaker caste in India is believed to have developed superior technique 2,000 years ago. Over a period of many centuries, its surgeons were able to graft not only living skin but even the subcutaneous fat, a feat rarely performed successfully today. They used a secret cement—and the secret has been lost.

Continuation Of Old Play Seems Quite Phenomenal

(By Associated Press) HOLLYWOOD, July 9.—Ninety-five years ago Phineas Taylor Barnum, working for his first million, decided that a good asset to build up his American museum to the greatest show on earth would be introduction of "moral drama".

He sought "to abolish all vulgarity and profanity from the stage". Among plays he produced was "The Drunkard", or "The Fallen Saved". In ran for a year, in 1843, at New York.

Last night, in a little clubhouse seating 350 spectators, the 1,830th consecutive performance of a revival of that old play was held. Into its sixth year, with seven nightly performances a week, the phenomena continues.

A Record Breaker

This is something perhaps old "P. T. B." himself would have liked to see, and no doubt he promptly would have dubbed it "the miracle of the age in the enthusiastic way he dubbed his own shows."

Galt Bell, who wanted to be an actor and had played in the old skit at the University of California, is the lanky producer who has captured an atmosphere in this unique, record-shattering venture here.

Half of the original cast, which started in July, 1933, still is in the show. There is Jan Duggan, "Bovary Nightingale" George Stuart, agile master of ceremonies; Ada Lilly, Ophelia-like "Mad Agnes"; Sam Ethridge, ruddy-faced hero; Larry Granier, who has knocked the hero cold for 1,830 consecutive nights; Jerry Williams, 78-year-old philanthropist of the melodram and Tom Miller, barkeep.

Atmosphere The Thing

A half million persons have attended, consuming 780,000 bottles of beer, 15,000,000 pretzels, tons of sandwiches and much coffee.

There have been 10 weddings in the cast and house staff since the show began.

The lifeblood of the show is its atmosphere, which takes audience as well as cast back into the last century. As in the old-fashioned music hall, patrons sit at tables. They boo the villain, cheer the hero, sigh with the fatherless heroine, toast the philanthropist and drink with the barkeep. After the play, they join for an hour or so in songs of bygone generations.

FRENCH LIVING COST GOING UP

More Than 6 Times Higher Than It Was Before World War

PARIS—The cost of living in France is more than six times what it was before the World War and still going up.

On the basis of an index of 100 for the year 1913, the level of living costs for 1937 was 619. During the last three months of that year it was 658. And for the first three months of this year it stood at 688.

On top of this the government has just devalued the franc again. Normally this would be followed by a further increase in the cost of living.

Consumers Protest

But the French householder is in no mood to put out more money for his day-to-day expenditures. Several recent warnings in the Paris press have informed the government that if it does not halt the rise in prices the consumers will take matters into their own hands.

Previous governments have complained when met by similar threats that they lacked the legislative power to deal with the regulation of prices. But the Daladier government has been granted the power to rule by decree and the French housewife is well aware of it. If prices go up further the government will undoubtedly have the problem of an organized opposition from the small consumer to add to its already heavy load of exterior and interior headaches.

Comparative Figures

Broken down into figures that mean something to every householder, the rise in prices during the last year may be illustrated by the following cost figures comparing prices of April, 1937, with those of April, 1938:

Bread: From 2.30 francs to 2.80. Beef: From 28.55 francs to 33.15. Veal: From 12.90 francs to 16.20. Mutton: From 24.55 francs to 28.30.

Pork: From 12.30 francs to 13.55. Coffee: From 20.05 francs to 22.65. Red Wine: From 2.68 to 3.09. Butter: From 25.80 francs to 27.60.

Milk: From 1.60 francs to 1.90. Potatoes: From 1.04 to 1.23. Cheese: From 18.25 francs to 20.00. Rice: From 3.55 francs to 4.80. Gasoline: From 2.05 francs to 3.00. Coal: From 25.95 francs to 28.50.

CINCINNATI—A ring which Hank Gowdy, former major league catcher star and now a coach for the Cincinnati Reds, won as a member of the Boston Braves "miracle team" of 1914, serves as his wife's wedding ring.

As Count Answered Babs' Suit

Here is Count Kurt Haugwitz-Reventlow, left, with his attorney, as he appeared in London court to answer charges of threatening his estranged wife, the former Barbara Hutton. He was freed on $10,000 bail after denying the charges. In addition to his trouble with "Babs", the count finds himself in the position of a "lone wolf" since the rift between him and his elder brother, Heinrich, over the affair.

Files $5,000 Suit

Mrs. William D. Brooks of 252 E. Fifth st. filed suit in common pleas court at Lisbon today against Dan U. and T. Emerson Smith, proprietors of the Smith grocery, asking $5,000 damages for injuries alleged to have been received when she tripped on a manhole in front of their store and fell.

Att'y Frank B. Fultz of Cleveland, counsel for the plaintiff, said the mishap occurred Dec. 9, 1936, and that Mrs. Brooks injured leg ligaments, hurt her back and suffered nervous shock in general.

BRITISH PONDER
100 NEW TOWNS

Plans to Move Many People from Big Cities to Small Towns

LONDON, July 9. — A plan to move approximately 5,000,000 people from large British cities to new self-contained towns is being considered by a royal commission.

The towns would be the center of six square miles of land on which factories would be erected; enough fruit, vegetables and milk would be produced to feed the inhabitants. Each town would house about 50,000 people in two-story houses with individual gardens and sun-rooms.

Sites for the towns already have been chosen. Seventy-six are in England, 15 in Scotland and nine in Wales.

It is planned to relieve London of 2,000,000 inhabitants, 1,500,000 from other large cities, and 1,500,000 from ribbon development estates.

The plan has been drawn up by the Hundred New Towns Association, and is being backed by Lord Escher, Admiral Sir William Goodenough, Sir Edwin Lutyens, famous architect, and others. The plan would cost $10,000,000, half of which would be used over a period of 10 years.

Existing industrial expansion is now proceeding without any kind of national plan; workers are living in inconvenient places and the country is being defaced, an official of the association said.

"Our plan will save this by collecting scattered people into compact areas."

Life of Woolworth Heiress in Photo Review

LIFER HOPEFUL
AFTER 38 YEARS

Oldest Ohio Pen Prisoner Refuses to Think He's Doomed

COLUMBUS — Chauncey Lyons, Ohio penitentiary's oldest prisoner, refuses to accept as final his life sentence and hopes that some day he may be free. He was sentenced in 1900 from Fairfield county for rape.

He has appeared before the board of pardons seven times. On six occasions the case was continued for reconsideration. The last time his case was continued until the expiration of sentence, which means until his death.

Despite the dark outlook Lyons says:

"I want to get out as badly as the man who came in here yesterday," and the way in which he says it convinces you he is a long way from giving up his dream of freedom.

Because of the crime for which he was convicted, Lyons is not a "sympathetic" subject. Yet Lyons denies his guilt and William Metzger of Carroll, O., who arrested him, wrote a letter to the board of parole in 1931, in which he stated:

"I think this was a put up job on the part of the family. I do not think he was guilty of the charge." Meantime, both the trial judge, Charles W. McCleery, and the state's attorney who prosecuted Lyons have died.

Typical pleas made by Lyons are to be found in the files of the chief record clerk. One of them, written May 2, 1928, reads:

"I am now over 60 years of age and would appreciate very much to be permitted to spend the rest of my days with my relatives."

"Won't you do something for me at this time of year when so many people are made happy by receiving the unexpected?"

For the last 11 years Lyons has been threatened with blindness. Now, at 73, he sees only shadows. He has been assigned to the prison hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Cope and daughter, Yvonne were Monday callers on local relatives.

Mrs. Joseph Edgerton visited Mrs. J. A. Sircy, Monday afternoon.

Services In Our Churches

Observe Communion
Sunday At Trinity
Lutheran Service

The Sacrament of the Holy Communion will be celebrated at the morning worship service of the Holy Trinity English Lutheran church tomorrow, the fourth Sunday after Trinity.

Services for the church are as follows:

Sunday school, 9:45; (Joshua 14-15); Charles W. Youtz, superintendent.

It takes a lot of courage to live this life properly. There are some brave souls who face a difficult future but are doing it unafraid. It is not possible to have true courage unless one's life is fortified with the presence and power of God. Courage of the right kind only can be inspired by knowing and understanding God. When a person is wholly devoted to the will of God, then such a thing as unfounded fears are impossible. Godly courage will inspire a person to lifetime devotion to Him from whom has come life and all things.

Morning worship, 11; sermon, "The Friend of Sinners." Public confession of sins and Sacrament of the Holy Communion.

The human race is sinful. Deep within the recesses of the heart and life is wickedness. Every attempt has been made to rid the world of sin and only failure has resulted. Sin has a condemning feature. It brings barriers between individuals. It seems like a chasm between God and man. Yet Jesus is the Friend of sinners. He hates the sin and loves the sinner. The Sacrament of the Holy Communion is one of the finest opportunities for a repentant sinner to realize anew that the friendship and pardoning grace of Jesus, the Savior, is a treasure.

Announcements

Sunday school for pupils up to the age of 20 years will be held at 9:30 a. m., while on Wednesday the mid-week service will be held at the church at 8 p. m.

The Golden Text is: "Let us keep the feast, not with old leaven, neither with the leaven of malice and wickedness; but with the unleavened bread of sincerity and truth" (I Corinthians 5:8).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "This is by commandment, That ye love one another, as I have loved you. . . . Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends" (John 15:12, 13).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Implicit faith in the Teacher and all the emotional love we can bestow on Him; will never alone make us imitators of Him. We must go and do likewise, else we are not improving the great blessings which Our Master worked and suffered to bestow upon us" (p. 25).

This society maintains a reading room at 136 S. Broadway where the Bible and all authorized Christian Science literature may be read or borrowed. The room is open daily from 11 a. m. to 4 p. m. and from 7 to 9 p. m. except on Wednesday evening.

The public is invited to attend all services and to visit the reading room.

CIGARS NEAR THIRD ROUND TITLE IN CLASS A.

SCOTT'S CIGARS BEAT VETERANS FOR FIFTH WIN

Salem News Gains Fourth Triumph of Third Round Race

The Old Timers and Scott's Cigars, leaders in the third round race of the Class A Softball league, clashed at Centennial park last evening with the Cigars gaining an 8 to 5 victory for their fifth straight win of the third round.

It was the first defeat in five third-round games for the Old Timers.

One obstacle remains between the Cigars and the third round championship of the senior circuit.

This obstacle is the Ohio Edison, the team which has been a "jinx" to the Cigars in both the first and second rounds of the Class A loop.

The Cigars must post a victory over the O. E. team to cop undisputed possession of the third round championship. Otherwise, they probably will be tied with the Old Timers for the title.

Eight errors by the veterans aided the Cigars in gaining their fifth consecutive win. The Old Timers displayed their worst fielding form of the season in dropping the decision.

The Cigars scored one run in the first inning to get away in front, then went on a six-run scoring spree in the second frame to sew up the victory. They added another run in the fourth inning. The Old Timers tallied once in the third inning and four times in the fifth.

The Salem News completed its third round schedule in the other Class A game, taking the measure of the Ohio Edison, 12 to 0. The triumph was the fourth of the third round for the News.

Heavy hitting by Bob Ketterer, Eddie Pukalski and Clyde Miller paced the News to their triumph. They scored one run in the second frame, nine markers in the third and four in the fourth, collecting 13 hits in doing so.

George McFeeley turned in his best pitching job of the season for the News in holding the Ohio Edison scoreless and allowing only four hits.

The Friends nosed out the Baptists, 9 to 8, in the lone Class B game last evening. Seven errors by the Baptists aided the Friends in copping the victory.

Allen was the winning pitcher, allowing eight hits, Bennett, pitching for the Baptists, gave up 14 hits.

A Class B game between the Emmanuel Lutherans and the Trinity Lutherans was won by the Emmanuel on a forfeit.

FLORISTS RALLY TO COP VICTORY

Score Six Runs In Last Inning To Gain 5th Straight Win

A six-run outburst in the seventh inning provided the winning markers as the Florist Club defeated the Prospect Aces, 15 to 12, for their fifth straight victory yesterday.

The Florists were on the short end of a 10 to 9 score when they staged their six-run rally in the final frame.

Both teams scored freely throughout the contest with the Florists collecting 36 hits and the Aces 17. Klean was on the mound for the Florists, while C. Weigand pitched for the Aces.

The Florists will meet the Columbians of the Class B City league at the Eighth st. field Monday evening.

PIRATES READY FOR 15 GAMES IN HOME PARK

Pittsburgh Hopes to Add To Pennant Strength In Home Stand

PITTSBURGH, July 9.—One of the most important and colorful home stands of the entire baseball season will follow the present Western trip of the Pittsburgh Pirates. Returning July 13, the Bucs will take on the four eastern clubs in a string of 15 straight games at Forbes field.

In this long series the Traynors will fight to sustain and strengthen their pennant bid by adding appreciable gains to the sensational surge which made them the standouts of the National league during the last six weeks.

The Brooklyn club will be the first visitor, appearing in three games on July 13, 14 and 15. The Dodgers have made plenty of trouble for the Pirates this year, holding them to an even break in ten meetings. Their two straight wins on June 5 and 6 marked the last time prior to Pittsburgh's big upward drive that the Pirates were defeated twice in succession.

Adding interest to the coming of the Brooklyn club will be the appearance of Babe Ruth in his new role as Dodger coach. Ruth has not been seen at Forbes field since he socked three home runs for the Bucs there May 23, 1935, including the only fair ball ever driven over the roof of the right-field grandstand. Babe probably will stand extension. Babe probably will give the fans a treat with an exhibition of long-distance fungo hitting before the games in the coming series.

Following the Dodgers, the champion New York Giants will storm Forbes field for the high spot of the Pittsburgh season so far. Between single games on Saturday and Monday, there will be a bargain doubleheader on Sunday, July 17, which no doubt will tax the capacity of the park with the largest turnout of the Pittsburgh year. The Bucs' first-place chances will be at stake on that series. The Phils and Bucs will follow for four games each to end the home stay.

BIDS FOR 7TH AUTO TRIUMPH

Michigan Champion Back In Action In Great Lakes Race

CLEVELAND, July 8.—When Michigan State Champion Johnny Wohlfel of Detroit returns to action Sunday afternoon in the Great Lakes championship midjet auto races at Sportsman's park, he will be seeking his seventh straight victory on the suburban oval.

Wohlfel is expected to receive his initial setback since the track opened last year, from either the cars of Floyd Trevis of Youngstown or Joe Baldwin of Hubbard. These two flying mosquitoes are powered with the initial pair of Hal midjet racing motors, manufactured in Akron, and reputedly the fastest powerhouses in the midjet game today.

Both cars received their baptism of fire on Ohio tracks during the past week, and though the motors were new and tight, gave good accounts of themselves. Besides fighting to maintain his undefeated streak on the Northfield bowl, Wohlfel will be seeking to regain the lead in the Great Lakes championship chase which he relinquished last week through non-appearance. Al Bonnell of Erie, Pa., Dale Cullison of Salem, and Johnny's closest rival, Jimmy Jackson of Indianapolis, all passed the Michigan ace.

Seven events again grace Sunday's card, the third in the Great Lakes championship series. A 40-lap feature tops the program. The racing gets under way at 2:30 p. m.

GLOBE, Ariz.—Joseph P. Sassoe owes his life to a ringing doorbell—and a traveling salesman was not the ringer. A fire short-circuited the current, rang the bell, and damaged his home causing an estimated loss of $9,000.

WOODBURY, N. J.—William Sutter, a mailman, was treated for lacerations of the scalp, suffered when attacked by a blue Jay. He had attempted to pick up two baby jays lying on the ground.

Fisher Queen

Miss Ruth Lehrer, who won the title Queen of the Fisherwomen at the casting pool of the Ritter Hotel, Bradley Beach, N. J., is pictured above. We promise to say nothing about form.

TORONTO—A year ago youth-ful Alphonse Robert Alda picked up his father's pipe and started smoking. Today, not quite 3 years old, Robert still is smoking the briar. Papa Alda says when the babe first saw the pipe he became curious, so permitted the child to try it in hopes a mild sickness might discourage Robert from smoking.

KLINGER, CARDS' CASTOFF, LEADS NATIONAL LOOP

Pittsburgh Hurler Tops Pitchers In Senior Circuit

By SID FEVER

The score is now one-to-one in the St. Louis Cardinals' game of ivory movements for the year. In between Brains Branch's moments of glee over the Dizzy Dean thing, he must be giving himself a few kicks where they'll do the most good for what he did—or didn't—do with Bob Klinger.

For a couple of seasons now, the St. Louis Cardinals have been in crying need of pitchers. And for high onto 10 years, they nursed Klinger and his curve ball along through their farm "chain gang".

Last winter Brains Branch let the Pittsburgh Pirates draft Klinger. All Rookie Bob has done so far is lead the league in the won-lost column, with seven victories against one setback, and turn in an earned-run average just over two per game. The payoff is that four of his victories (are you listening, Branch?) have been against the St. Louis Cardinals, the latest a 6-2 setback yesterday.

Yesterday's victory, however, didn't take anything off the 3 1/2-game lead the New York Giants boast, because Terrence Terry's Terriers topped the Boston Bees, 4-2, on Harry Gumbert's four-hit pitching and Alex Kampouris' two-run homer.

Over in the American league, the Yankees' 10-game unbeaten run ended as the Boston Red Sox topped the New Yorkers, 9-8. Since Cleveland nosed out the Browns, 8-7 in 10 innings, the junior circuit's first-place deadlock was broken, leaving the Tribe on top of the Yanks by a game.

The Cincinnati Reds snapped their six-game losing streak by trouncing the Cubs, 7-6, on Billy Myers' homer in the tenth. Brooklyn clubbed the Phillies, 13-2, with a 15-hit attack.

Harry Kelley, now of Washington, blanked his ex-mates, the Athletics, with seven hits for an 11-0 win. Rudy York and Hank Greenberg hit homers as the Tigers trounced the Chicago White Sox, 7-5, in the first game of a double-header, but the Sox came back to gain an even break by taking the nightcap, 5-3 in 11 innings.

URBANA-CHAMPAIGN, Ill.—The student senate at the University of Illinois has asked the school administration to introduce a course in marriage problems restricted to seniors. President Arthur Cutsis willard countered with a proposal for a series of lectures open to all students, but the senate replied with a letter holding to its original request.

stock market a few days ago carried the information that a wide break in grain prices caused by the prospect of a bumper crop helped undermine supports for stocks and bonds and accentuated a decline in key staples throughout the commodity markets. The possible curtailment of rural buying power as a result of a rapid fall in key products appeared as a fresh threat to business.

Scientific Discoveries

"Recent scientific discoveries which show that food and fiber can be produced in the laboratory even better than from the soil indicate that millions of acres may be taken out of commercial cultivation."

"If this development continues, the day of the traditional farmer and his rustic isolation will be over. He will become more and more an adjunct to industry, dependent upon its swift changes. The unswerving of reality will be overcome, and we shall have an economy of abundance; but it will be accompanied by the problem of distributing the population and by new problems of social and economic adjustment."

"It may mean, however, that the city limits will cease to be the dividing line between city and country, and that we shall again be united by the bond of common occupations and common interests as we were 150 years ago, without the drudgery, the inconveniences, and the primitive life of those days. Thus science and machines will have proved themselves to be our great benefactors."

SHIP BUILDING PROFITS ITALY

Builds Liners For Many Other Countries At Healthy Profit

ROME, July 9.—Italy is finding shipbuilding for foreign countries good business.

The largest foreign passenger liner ever to be constructed in Italy, the 28,000-ton Stockholm for the Svenska America Line of Sweden, was completed recently. Before delivery, Italian shipyards were working on 21 units ordered by seven nations with a total tonnage of 166,500 tons. The ships were commissioned by Great Britain, the United States, Norway, Portugal, Rumania and other countries.

In addition, negotiations are underway with Brazil, Chile and Venezuela for the construction in Italy of ships and submarines.

Italy's shipyards can underbid any of the reliable shipbuilders in the world because of three main reasons:

1. Premier Benito Mussolini does not believe in the dole. His plan is to keep labor occupied, even on part time and reduced wages. Occupied workmen, he considers, are happier than workmen on the dole.

2. Propaganda, Italy's prestige is heightened each time a new keel is laid for a foreign customer.

3. Foreign Exchange. Italy needs foreign exchange to purchase commodities such as steel and coal in which it is deficient. The ships, with few exceptions, are sold for cash.

Among ships under construction for foreign countries are three, with a total tonnage of 16,000, for Great Britain.

DEATHS

MRS. WM. C. LIPPETT

Mrs. Hester Brownlee Lippett, 54, wife of William C. Lippett, died at 1 a. m. today at her home on Townline rd., Warren.

She leaves her husband; five daughters, Mrs. E. F. Getz of Lordstown and Mrs. Paul Kelly of Warren, Cecilia, Esther and June at home; five grandchildren; one brother, A. Brownlee of Cleveland. Funeral service will be conducted at 2 p. m. Monday at the home.

J. W. SENHEISER

J. W. Senheiser, 61, formerly of Woodland ave., died at 2 p. m. yesterday following a heart attack. His wife died three years ago. Mr. Senheiser was born Aug. 22, 1877. Although a coal miner by trade, he served at one time as janitor at the First National bank here.

He leaves one step-son, C. E. Wilhelm of R. D. 1, Leetonia; two sisters, Mrs. Robert Gilmore of North Lima and Mrs. Newton L. Ingledue of R. D. 3, Salem.

Funeral service will be held at 2 p. m. Monday at the Stark Memorial in charge of Rev. C. F. Bailey. Burial will be in Franklin Square cemetery.

The family will meet friends at the Memorial Sunday evening.

'Certain Nations' Played in Speech By Wm. C. Bullitt

(By Associated Press)

REIMS, France, July 9.—United States Ambassador William C. Bullitt delivered a scathing attack today on "certain nations" who resort to "murder of defenseless men, women and children" and "employ such crimes as instruments of their national policy."

The ambassador named no countries. He spoke at Reims city hall, where he was made an honorary citizen.

The ambassador asserted "there are materials present from which to rebuild international morality."

"Not alone France, England and all the countries of America," he declared, "but also a host of nations are eager to live as good neighbors."

"There is a calm courage and understanding of the unity of the human race not only in France but in many other countries which, like France, are devoted to liberty and peace."

Of bombings of civilians, he said:

"Only 20 years ago the murder of defenseless men, women and children by armed men sent a shudder of horror throughout the world. Since 1918, the decay of international morality has been so rapid that today certain nations are not ashamed to employ such crimes as instruments of national policy."

"Without international morality, as without national morality, there can be no human life worth living."

Theatre Attractions

Melvyn Douglas and Louise Rainer in a scene from "The Toy Wife" which will show Sunday and Monday at the State theater.

Louise Rainer, twice winner of the Academy award for fine performances, is starred with Melvyn Douglas and Robert Young in "The Toy Wife," which is featured at the State Sunday and Monday.

The picture gives Miss Rainer the role of a spoiled, frivolous southern belle whose only desire is to live gaily and brightly. She marries a brilliant young lawyer, played by Melvyn Douglas, with whom her younger sister is in love, and later the young wife falls in love with a wild young gambler and swordsman, enacted by Robert Young.

Goes With Gambler

She nearly ruins the lawyer's life and after a quarrel with him leaves without taking her small son with her. She goes to a northern city with the gambler and lives there for some years. Young promises, when his luck runs out, to take her back to her husband. They go back to her home where Young and Douglas fight a duel in which the former is killed. The young wife disappears, until her sister finds her one day in a church, dying and begging forgiveness.

The role is Miss Rainer's first in several months and is considered one of the best characterizations of her career. Douglas and Young in the male leads of the story and Miss Barbara O'Neill as the younger sister turn in excellent performances.

Fight Film Booked

The official pictures of the Joe Louis-Max Schmeling title bout will be a featured attraction at the State Sunday and Monday. The 16-minute film shows the fight, blow by blow, in slow and fast motion pictures.

The State will present two pictures on Tuesday and Wednesday: A comedy, "We're Going to Be Rich," featuring Gracie Fields, English comedienne, Victor McLaglen and Brian Donlevy; and an adventure film "Border G-Man," with George O'Brien.

The Thursday only feature at the State will be "Woman Against Woman," with Herbert Marshall, Virginia Bruce and Mary Astor in the leading roles.

"Gold Diggers in Paris," featuring Rudy Vallee, Rosemary Lane, Allen Jenkins, Mabel Todd, Freddie Fisher's Schickelfritz band, Gloria Dickson and Hugh Herbert, concludes the week's billing at the State, showing there Friday and Saturday.

The comedy "Holiday," starring Katharine Hepburn and Cary Grant, shows for the last time tonight at the State theater.

At the Grand

The Grand will offer a two-pic-

Joan Has Daughter

Joan Blondell

Norman Scott Barnes, three-year-old son of Actress Joan Blondell and her husband, Actor Dick Powell, soon will have a playmate, for the actress has given birth to a daughter, an eight-pounder, in Hollywood. The baby will be named Ellen. Powell recently petitioned to adopt the boy, with the consent of George Barnes, Miss Blondell's first husband.

Gleason; and "Sez O'Reilly to Mac-Nab," starring Will Mahoney and Will Fyffe, famous vaudeville comedians.

Thursday's feature at the Grand is "Exiled to Shanghai" with Wallace Ford, June Travis, Dean Jagger and Arthur Lake in prominent parts.

Charles Starrett, popular western actor, is seen in "Call of the Rockies" at the Grand Friday and Saturday with another chapter of the new serial, "Zorro Rides Again," featuring John Carroll.

The Three Mesquiteers, Bob Livingston, Ray Corrigan and Max Terhune, in "Riders of the Black Hills" conclude tonight at the Grand.

OBERLIN—A large owl, which makes its home in a tree on the Oberlin college campus, attacked more than a score of students because it apparently was annoyed by whistling. Eugene Veverka, sophomore of Cleveland, was the most seriously injured. His forehead was lacerated by the bird's claws.

Robert Gilbert

Did Mrs. Dale Colombos, 2-year-old expectant mother, die while she was under the hypnotic spell of Robert A. Gilbert, 49, fe 27 years a vaudeville hypnotist, or not? Glendale, Cal., police sought an answer to that question as they held Gilbert on a charge of suspicion of murder. Gilbert denied hypnotizing the young woman, but admitted being in the room at the time and said that Mrs. Colombos collapsed after lifting a day bag. Gilbert recently won considerable attention when he assisted in the painless "post hypnosis" childbirth in which Mrs. Ethel Gayne gave birth to a girl while under the spell of hypnosis.
